Finding homes where people can live, providing supports that they can count on, training them to work and then helping them to find jobs. And above all- teaching people the skills so that they can make friends, pursue their interests; feel good about themselves by volunteering- and at the end of the day- have a life. Like all Americans, those with disabilities should have the opportunity to participate in activities that create full and satisfying lives. In addition to employment opportunities, we also provide opportunities that foster engagement in leisure activities, such as joining clubs and other organizations, attending cultural events, doing volunteer work, taking educational courses, and making friends with those who have similar interests.
